POLITICS AND INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS

Politics is a never-ending discussion about how to achieve a good society and how to improve our lives. With our Politics list we are excited to be part of that discussion and to publish international authors who bring fresh perspectives and evidence to it, reflecting the dynamism of both fields.

We want the scholarship we publish to enable researchers to communicate with each other, with new generations of students, and with a wider audience of thoughtful readers. The list will include work from across the sub-disciplines and reflect the variety of approaches and methods used in political analysis.

We are particularly interested in scholarship that tackles the global social challenges of our time, including: poverty, wealth and inequality; conflict, security, peace and justice; and equality of opportunity and social justice.

If you are interested in writing for our Politics and International Relations list, please contact s.wenham@bristol.ac.uk or visit our information for authors page to download our proposal guidelines.

Meet the editor

Stephen Wenham,
Publisher

Before joining Bristol University Press, I studied politics at Bristol University and then joined Palgrave Macmillan publishers where I worked on a number of subjects across the social sciences before becoming editor and then publisher on the politics textbook list.

I enjoy working with researchers to make their work accessible to the widest range of readers. Writing is typically a solitary activity, but publishing, marketing and selling a book involves a small army of talented people. As an editor you can help link these worlds and that is very rewarding.
