ENVIRONMENT AND SUSTAINABILITY

Building a significant Environment and Sustainability list is of high priority for us as a Press.

As climate change remains one of the biggest social challenges our future generations will face, urgent action is needed to influence the political agenda, contribute to the debate and incite real change.

Of central importance is to publish works which offer a solid foundation for international and domestic policies around global warming and support building impactful democratic solutions. These include Rebecca Willis' Too Hot to Handle? and Peter J. Taylor et al.'s Cities Demanding the Earth.

If you are interested in writing for our Environment and Sustainability list, please contact the Senior Commissioning Editor at emily.watt@bristol.ac.uk or visit our website to browse our Author Hub and to download our proposal guidelines.

Meet the editor

Emily Watt,
Senior Commissioning Editor

At the centre of Bristol University Press is a strong social mission to promote positive social change in all sorts of areas and for me, the exciting part of commissioning is talking to authors and seeing a project grow from a conversation into the greatest book it can be.
