

Organizations and Activism series

Series Editors: Martin Parker, University of Bristol and Daniel King, Nottingham Trent University

From cooperatives to corporations, Occupy to Facebook, organizations shape our lives. They engage in politics as well as shaping the possible futures of policy making and social change. This new series publishes books that explore how politics happens within and because of organizations. We want to explore how activism is organized, and how activists change organizations. This is a topic of huge relevance to scholars in management, sociology, politics, geography and beyond, and is becoming ever more important as demands for impact and engagement change the way that academics imagine their work.

The series considers organizations and organizing in the broadest sense. Our books offer critical examinations of organizations as sites of or targets for activism, and we also assume that our authors are themselves agents of change. Books may focus on specific organizations, industries or fields, or they may be arranged around particular themes.

Books in the series are typically between 70,000 – 90,000 words in length. Authored books are preferred, but high-quality, cohesive edited volumes are welcome. Our books tend to be written for academic audiences, although the nature of this series means that we encourage authors to consider how their work can be made accessible to non-specialist readers.

Call for proposals

Organizations and Activism is a multidisciplinary series. Contributions from all and any relevant fields (for example, development studies, cultural studies and the humanities) are welcome, and this disciplinary diversity is reflected in the series advisory board. The series is international in outlook, and proposals from outside the English speaking global north are particularly welcome. Topics may include:

- the alternative economy;
- surveillance, whistleblowing and human rights;
- digital politics;
- environmental organizations;
- activism and the pharmaceutical industry;
- NGOs in the global south;
- religious groups and activism;
- feminism and anarchist organization;
- the law and radical social movements;
- action research and co-production;
- activism and the neoliberal university.

Global Social Challenges Journal

NON-PROFIT, OPEN ACCESS
PUBLISHING FOR CHANGE

Bristol University Press is delighted to announce its first fully Open Access journal.

"I'm proud to see Bristol University Press launching this important new journal, which promises to address the most urgent complexities of global social challenges by drawing together accessible international scholarship across the disciplines to inform policy and practice."

PROFESSOR JUDITH SQUIRES, DEPUTY VICE-CHANCELLOR AND PROVOST, UNIVERSITY OF BRISTOL

How can we reimagine society in an era of climate change, pandemic, hunger, poverty, questions of racial, ethnic and gender justice and other pressing global societal challenges? Significant threats and dangers lie ahead of us, but so do opportunities, as new ways of being, thinking and doing emerge. This new, fully Open Access journal aims to facilitate thinking about these positive new trajectories and to become the journal of choice to address the complexities of global social challenges across disciplines and fields.
