Urban Policy, Planning and the Built Environment

Series Editors: Pierre Filion, University of Waterloo, Canada, Nicole Gurren, University of Sydney, Australia and Nick Gallent, Bartlett School of Planning, UCL, UK

This international series examines the interdisciplinary dimensions of urbanism and the built environment. It provides critical analyses of the challenges confronting cities at the intersection between markets, public policy and the built environment, as well as the responses emerging from these challenges.

Jul 2021

This book provides an innovative perspective to consider contemporary urban challenges through the lens of urban vacancy. The contributors develop new empirical insights that rethink ruination, urban development and political contestation over the re-use of vacant spaces in post-crisis cities across the globe.

May 2020

Spanning multiple countries across South America, Europe and Africa, this book investigates the phenomenon of self-building for low- and middle-income groups in urban areas. It explores the tension between governance and self-regulation, considering how this relationship can be remodelled and optimised to create more socially sustainable forms of urbanisation. It argues for a rethinking of governance and the moral and managerial ownership of the city.

Rescaling Urban Governance

Feb 2020

In response to unprecedented pressure from climate change, migration, ageing populations and resource shortages, this authoritative book provides new research and thinking about cities, their governance and planning reform, examining global examples of cutting-edge policy experimentation and innovation designed to guarantee a sustainable future.

Call for proposals

The series seeks contributions that consider one or more of the following:

- the ways substantive policy agendas are addressed through formal, informal, public and non-public planning processes;
- how governance arrangements and the involvement of diverse actors in the planning process can answer key public policy dilemmas;
- the contested role of planning as a form of government intervention in the market;
- how planning responds to increasing social complexities, socio-spatial diversity and democratic renewal and how it intersects with debates around democracy, power and 'governmentality'.
