Publishing for global impact and social change

Bristol University Press and its imprint Policy Press's focus on tackling social, political, economic and cultural issues is ever more relevant. As a not-for-profit university press publishing in the social sciences and aligned disciplines, our vision is to create and disseminate critically acclaimed, evidence-based work that makes a difference in the world.

Our award-winning books and journals address global social challenges and advance theory, knowledge and learning within and beyond academia. At time when the scholarly community is facing unprecedented challenges, we are committed to ensuring that all our products are accessible by everyone regardless of age, ability or situation.

We are proud to partner with organisations such as Research4Life to support low economy communities and to have received Highly Commended in the ASPIRE Accessibility Awards awarded by JISC. More details can be found here: bristoluniversitypress.co.uk/equalitydiversityinclusion.

As a team, we strive to extend this mission by practising what we preach. Each year we select a charity to support through fundraising and awareness campaigns. This year's charity is Julian House, which offers direct support to the homeless. Find out more here: bristoluniversitypress.co.uk/charity

Welcome

The extraordinary circumstances of 2020 will have changed us all. The loss of life, livelihoods and freedoms means it will be some time before we are able to fully grasp the social, economic, political and cultural impacts.

As a publisher we respond to these global challenges by continuing to seek out and provide well-considered evidence and analysis for scholars and students, activists and social commentators, policy makers and practitioners, and our wider readership.

Publishing new thinking at speed to contribute to the formulation of ideas and solutions is vital in our fast-changing world. Our Transforming Society blog, podcasts, videos and new webinar series offer ways to do this, as do our Shorts and our new digital, Rapid Responses (see pages 6 and 7) launching this summer. Our new Author Hub provides tools for authors to maximise engagement so their work can influence debates and contribute to social change.

As we prepare for the unprecedented outcomes of the pandemic, respond to the discrimination and inequality facing people around the globe, and push for climate action, our not-for-profit 'publishing with a purpose' mission has never been stronger, or felt more necessary.

This catalogue reflects the changing nature both of the world and our publishing, presenting for the first time an equal number of titles across our Policy Press and BUP lists, from social policy to the impact of technology on society. I hope you find it inspiring.

ALISON SHAW, CEO,
BRISTOL UNIVERSITY PRESS

Two brands leading the way on social issues

Our imprint Policy Press was established nearly a quarter of century ago and publishes award-winning titles that can make a real difference in the world. It seeks to understand social problems, promote social change and inform policy and practice.

P Policy Press

With Policy Press at its heart, we launched Bristol University Press in 2016 to broaden and internationalise our view, publishing world-class scholarship across the social sciences and aligned disciplines. We are proud of the work we are doing to extend scholarly boundaries and foster innovative research approaches as seen in our Challenge-led Research Practices list (see page 50).

Across these interconnected elements of our company we try to achieve our core objectives of improving the day-to-day lives of people who need it most, confronting discrimination and inequality, and helping to tackle the many global social challenges we face.

"Both the work of Bristol University Press and the mission that underpins it have never felt more relevant or more needed. BUP is uniquely placed to respond to the extraordinary circumstances we are facing through its broad range of high-quality, evidence-based products from leading thinkers across the globe: products that will inform, influence and shape responses to current – and future – challenges."

DEBORAH WILSON, RESEARCH DIRECTOR, FACULTY OF SOCIAL SCIENCES AND LAW, UNIVERSITY OF BRISTOL AND CHAIR, BRISTOL UNIVERSITY PRESS EDITORIAL BOARD.

Rapid Responses

As the world deals with the repercussions of COVID-19, our new series of Rapid Responses are social commentary interventions aiming to make an impact and influence thinking quickly.

These digital-only responses publish in 6-8 weeks and are written by leading international academics, policy makers and professionals, charity sector workers and activists to inspire and motivate by presenting alternative paths for social change.

The first books in the series will offer suggestions on what lessons might be learned, focusing on money, working at home, sociality, co-operation, organizing, travel, localism, the state, the market, supply chains and care.

Social Problems in the Age of COVID-19

Volume 1: US Perspectives

Edited by Glenn Muschert, Khalifa University of Science and Technology, Kristen Budd, Miami University, Michelle Christian, University of Tennessee David C. Lane, Illinois State University and Jason M. Smith, Kaiser Foundation Health Plan

Written by a highly respected team of authors brought together by the Society for the Study of Social Problems (SSSP), this book provides accessible insights into pressing social problems in the United States in the aftermath of the COVID-19 pandemic and proposes public policy responses for victims and justice, precarious populations, employment dilemmas and health and well-being. The second volume focusing on international perspectives will also be available in October 2020.

Secrets and Silence

Child Sex Abuse from Cleveland to Savile and Beyond

Beatrix Campbell, Writer and broadcaster

"Beatrix Campbell is one of those rare writers in whom a passion for justice is matched to a brilliantly forensic intelligence. In this gripping illumination of the long shadow of the Cleveland child abuse case, she shows the disastrous consequences of a pernicious myth."

FINTAN O'TOOLE, IRISH TIMES

"A significant milestone in national and global narratives on child sexual abuse ... offers much-needed insight whilst the nation's Independent Inquiry Into Child Sexual Abuse carries out its work .... A game changer."

NATASHA PHILLIPS, RESEARCHING REFORM

"This book will make you gasp and possibly even cry, as the story is unfolded of how and why generations of children have been let down by governments and institutions which found the reality of the harms done to them too hard to bear. It will make you reassess everything you thought you knew about Cleveland and child sexual abuse."

LIZ KELLY, CWASU, LONDON METROPOLITAN UNIVERSITY

When paediatricians in the English county of Cleveland identified evidence of rape in 121 children in 1987, they were discredited. Children were sent home and the public assured that there was no widespread problem of sexual abuse.

Renowned journalist Beatrix Campbell shockingly reveals the government's deliberate cover-up of expert findings that most of the diagnoses were correct: ministers misled the public, doctors and social workers were denounced and the children were denied their own stories.

The legacy of the Cleveland controversy lived on in child protection practice policing for 30 years. Some children were left unprotected, others died – until the government was finally forced to launch the current Independent Inquiry into Child Sexual Abuse, whose outcome will determine whether the public can be certain that children will be protected in future.

Radical Empathy

Finding a Path to Bridging Racial Divides

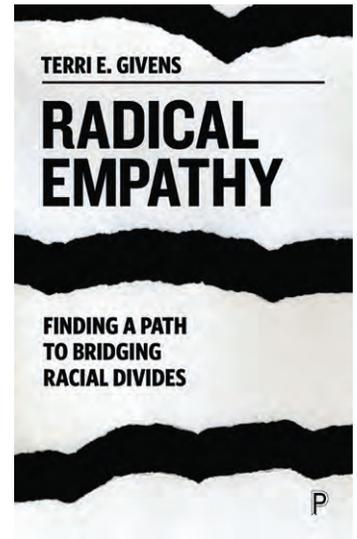

Terri E. Givens, Centre for Higher Education

"Radical empathy, integrating, actually requiring empathy for self along with others and prioritizing action, is exactly what our culture needs most to get closer to living our ideals."

ELISA CAMAHORT PAGE, INDEPENDENT CONSULTANT

In the US, political developments in the 21st century have shown that deep racial divides remain. The persistence of inequality reveals the stubborn resilience of the institutions that maintain white supremacy.

To bridge our divides, renowned political scientist Terri Givens calls for 'radical empathy' – moving beyond an understanding of others' lives and pain to understand the origins of our biases, including internalised oppression. Deftly weaving together her own experiences with the political, she offers practical steps to call out racism and bring about radical social change.

Slow Computing

Why We Need Balanced Digital Lives

Rob Kitchin and Alistair Fraser, Maynooth University

"An important contribution to understanding our technological present and future. It handles complicated matters with a deft touch, without minimizing the scholarly arguments."

PAUL DOURISH, UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA

"Responding to the pace of our dizzying tech-dominated lifestyles, this stunningly crafted book helps the reader to think, reflect and keep their balance."

DAVID BEER, UNIVERSITY OF YORK

"This perceptive and engaging book provides a clear diagnosis and a thoughtful prescription for taking back control of our digital lives."

TERESA SCASSA, UNIVERSITY OF OTTAWA

"Convincingly demonstrates how finding the 'right speed' can enhance the pleasure of using digital technologies and bring agency and balance back into people's lives."

DEBORAH LUPTON, UNSW SYDNEY

Digital technologies should be making life easier. And to a large degree they are, but they also accelerate our lives affecting our wellbeing and determining our life chances. Is it then possible to experience the joy and benefits of computing in a way that asserts individual and collective autonomy?

Drawing on the ideas of the 'slow movement', Slow Computing sets out numerous practical and political means to take back control and counter the more pernicious effects of living digital lives.

Politics and International Relations

In a unpredictable political landscape, our books continue to tackle some of the most pressing issues in politics. Our publications are diverse in both approach and focus, but consistent in quality. We are pleased to announce books in two new series, Bristol Studies in International Theory (page 14) and Spaces of Peace, Security and Development (page 15). Keith Dowding's timely new book It's the Government, Stupid is essential reading on the relative responsibility of governments and citizens for social well-being.

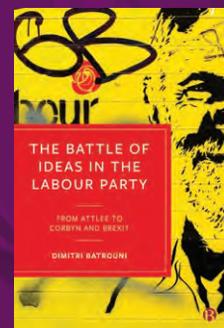

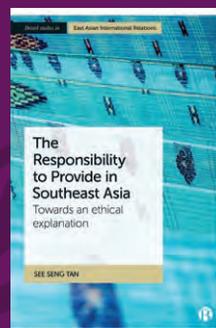

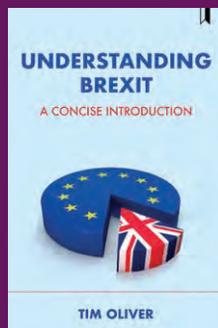

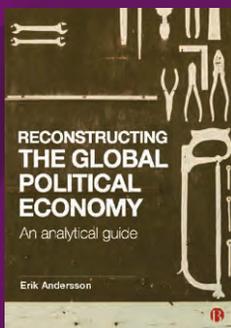

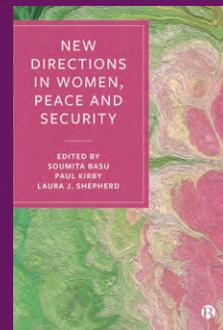

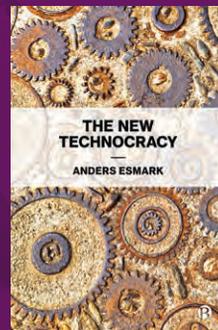

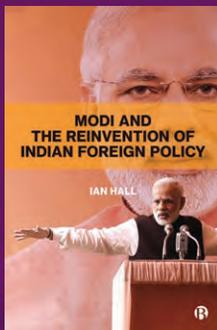

As our publishing programme continues to expand, we welcome proposals for new books and series. If you have ideas, please do get in touch to discuss.

It's the Government, Stupid

How Governments Blame Citizens for Their Own Policies

Keith Dowding, Australian National University

"Offers a powerful argument, drawing on a range of international critical policy issues, that puts down a challenge for all those interested in the relationship between government and its citizens."

MARTIN LODGE, LONDON SCHOOL OF ECONOMICS AND POLITICAL SCIENCE

"Clearly shows why governments are responsible for the welfare of their citizens and why the 'cult of personal responsibility' is mistaken. Everyone – voters and politicians – should read this book."

MATT MATRAVERS, UNIVERSITY OF YORK

"Throws down the gauntlet to political philosophers ... Timely and important."

MIRIAM BANKOVSKY, LA TROBE UNIVERSITY

Governments have developed a convenient habit of blaming social problems on their citizens, placing too much emphasis on personal responsibility and pursuing policies to 'nudge' their citizens to better behaviour.

Dowding shows that, in fact, responsibility for many of our biggest social crises – including obesity, gun crime, homelessness, drug addiction and problem gambling – should be laid at the feet of politicians.

The Gilets Jaunes and the New Social Contract

Charles Devellennes, University of Kent

Charles Devellennes provides a lively account of the gilets jaunes, the yellow vest movement that has shaken France since 2018. He assesses what lessons can be drawn from their activities and the impact for the contemporary relationship between state and citizen.

New Textbook

Rigorous and readable, this accessible introductory text explains the political, economic and religious developments since the formation of the Islamic Republic in 1979 and provides an analysis of the domestic politics of Iran.

The book covers:

- Iran's unusual path of capitalist development;
- the relationship between politics and religion in what is known as 'God's Kingdom';
- the international and domestic factors that shape Iranian politics and society.

Bristol Studies in International Theory series

The Idea of Civilization in the Making of the Global Order

Andrew Linklater, Aberystwyth University

This book provides the first exploration of the significance of Norbert Elias's reflections on civilization for international relations.

It explains the working principles of an Eliasian, or process-sociological, approach to civilization and the global order and demonstrates how the interdependencies between state-formation, colonialism and an emergent international society shaped the European 'civilizing process.'

Ecological Justice and the Extinction Crisis

Giving Living Beings their Due

Anna Wienhues, University of Zurich

"A courageous and carefully crafted defence of the concept of ecological justice."

ALAN HOLLAND, LANCASTER UNIVERSITY

As the biodiversity crisis deepens, Anna Wienhues sets out radical environmental thinking and action to respond to the threat of mass species extinction. The book conceptualises large-scale injustice endangering non-humans, and signposts new approaches to the conservation of a shared planet, building towards a bold vision of just conservation.

Sociology

Our Sociology books aim to shape public conversations at this time of social, political, economic and cultural disruption, and our focus, ranging from the challenges facing individuals to widescale global social challenges, has never felt more important.

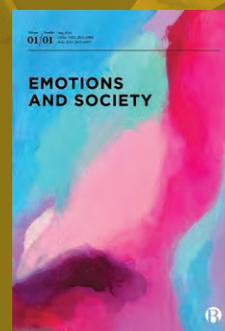

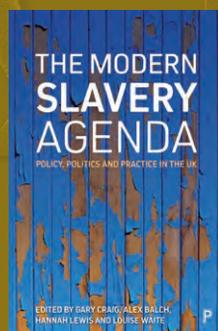

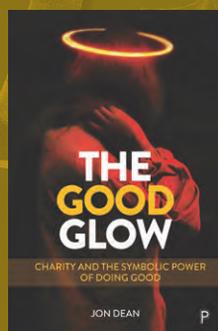

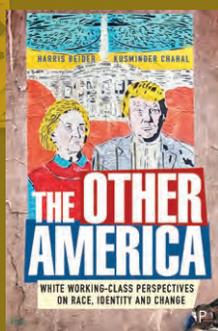

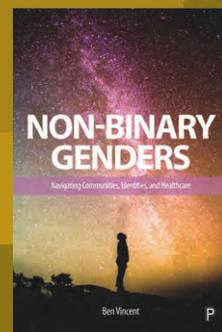

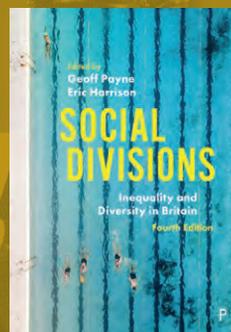

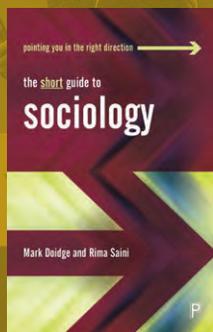

This season we're thrilled to launch our Public Sociology series with two books: Public Sociology as Educational Practice, a collection by Eurig Scandrett, as well as The Public and Their Platforms by Mark Carrigan and Lambros Fatsis (page 22). We are also excited to publish the newest addition to our 21st Century Standpoints series, Yunis Alam's Race, Taste, Class and Cars (page 20).

21st Century Standpoints series

IN ASSOCIATION WITH

Series Editors: Les Back, Goldsmiths, University of London and Nasar Meer, University of Edinburgh

Accessible, social and political commentary from Policy Press and the British Sociological Association.

What are the 21st century challenges shaping our lives today and in the future? This exciting series showcases lively, disruptive, progressive writers who reach beyond the academy. Cosmopolitan in vision and scope, included works are based on striking ideas and robust evidence, providing a powerful platform for both scholarly and public debate. ## Race, Taste, Class and Cars

Yunis Alam, University of Bradford

"Offers new and important insights through the lens of the car into the everyday lives and identities of young British Muslim men and women, rendering them at once mundane and richly textured. A masterclass in the sociological imagination."

CLAIRE ALEXANDER, UNIVERSITY OF MANCHESTER

"A brilliant exploration of the sociology of everyday life using the icon of the age of 'the car' to situate identity."

YUNAS SAMAD, LAHORE UNIVERSITY OF MANAGEMENT SCIENCES

"Alam's focus is the humble car, but his analysis and rich insights reveal the centrality of these objects in producing and sustaining key aspects of social life – our identities and persistent inequalities of race, taste and class. A must-read."

NATHAN MANNING, UNIVERSITY OF ADELAIDE

In subtle and complex ways, cars transmit and modify our identities behind the wheel. As a symbol of independence and freedom, the car projects status, class, taste and, significantly, embeds racialisation. Using fascinating research from drivers, including first-person accounts, as well as exploring hip-hop music and car-related TV shows, Alam unpicks the ways in which our identity is enhanced and driven.

Money

Myths, Truths and Alternatives

Mary Mellor, Northumbria University

"... an accessible and coherent account of the nature of money and of how it might be better organised."

CITIZENS BASIC INCOME TRUST

What does money mean? Where does it come from and how does it work?

Mary Mellor examines money's social, political and commercial histories to debunk longstanding myths such as money being in short supply and needing to come from somewhere.

She sets out a new finance system, based on green and feminist concerns, to bring radical change for social good.

What's Wrong with Work?

Lynne Pettinger, University of Warwick

"A smart, compelling and thoughtful exploration of what work is and how it might be made more ethical."

ERIN HATTON, UNIVERSITY AT BUFFALO

As changes occur in how work is organised across the globe, What's Wrong with Work? shows that the way in which workers are treated has wide implications beyond the lives of workers themselves.

Recognising gender, race, class and global differences, the book looks at three kinds of work – green work, IT work and the 'gig' economy. It considers the ways formal work is often dependent on informal work, especially domestic work and care work, and concludes by considering what might make work better.

Public Sociology series

Series Editors: John Brewer, Queen's University Belfast and Neil McLaughlin, McMaster University

This series showcases the wide diversity of sociological research that addresses global social challenges in the 21st century, focusing on materially improving people's lives through an understanding of the social condition. There are currently two books in the series with more forthcoming. For more information, see bristoluniversitypress.co.uk/public-sociology

The Public and Their Platforms Public Sociology in an Era of Social Media

Mark Carrigan, University of Cambridge and Lambros Fatsis, University of Brighton

As social media increasingly becomes a standard feature of sociological practice, this timely book rethinks what it can contribute to public sociology. Cutting across multiple disciplines, the authors map out a new role for the public sociologist within platform capitalism.

Science, Technology and Society

The relationship between science, technology and society has emerged as one of the most important issues of the 21st century, and our books help readers make sense of an increasingly uncertain world.

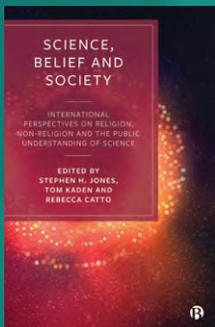

Our newest list continues to grow and this season we're delighted to publish some exciting books on topics like technology and sustainability, responsible innovation and the importance of 'slow computing' (page 10).

The Age of Low Tech

Towards a Technologically Sustainable Civilization

Philippe Bihouix, independent author and engineer

“This book brings to life the ideas of appropriate technology for our future – full of global threats and opportunities.”

IAN RODERICK, THE SCHUMACHER INSTITUTE

As we face a profound environmental crisis, we often think that it can be overcome by smart systems and green innovations, but this is risky since increasingly complex technological solutions rely on less abundant materials.

A bestseller in France, this English language edition introduces readers to an alternative perspective on our technological future. If ‘high’ technology will not solve global problems, Bihouix skilfully envisages a more resilient and sustainable society.

Responsibility Beyond Growth

A Case for Responsible Stagnation

Stevienna de Saille, University of Sheffield, Fabien Medvecky, University of Otago, Michiel van Oudheusden, Katholieke Universiteit Leuven, Kevin Albertson, Manchester Metropolitan University, Effie Amanatidou, University of Manchester, Timothy Birabi, Consultant and Mario Pansera, Universitat Autònoma de Barcelona

“With this audacious book, De Saille and her colleagues have given us a genuinely innovative framework of innovation.”

ARTURO ESCOBAR, UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA

Critically assessing growth-based models of innovation policy, this book sparks new debate on the role and nature of responsible innovation. Drawing on economics, politics and science and technology studies, it proposes ‘responsible stagnation’ as an expansion of discussions about growth, degrowth, responsibility and innovation within planetary limitations.

Diversity and Sustainability

Equality, Diversity and Inclusion

Equality, diversity and inclusion (EDI) are foundational to our business ethos and we consider demographic, experiential and cognitive diversity in our policies and practices.

We value the diversity of thought, belief and background of our authors, editors and staff which enables us to publish a wide range of voices that challenge accepted norms.

We have been publishing authors from marginalised groups since our inception 25 years ago, and tackling inequality is a central plank of our publishing strategy. Our work with Research4Life and other partners helps ensure the research we publish is accessible to those in developing economies.

With our focus on research that addresses global social challenges, we recognise that a new intellectual endeavour needs to be forged with researchers in the Global South. We have appointed a new Publisher for International Development, we champion moves to decolonise the university, and support indigenous research.

Sustainability

We apply the same social responsibility and positive action values of our publishing to managing our organisation. Our sustainability strategy focuses on reducing our environmental impact and creating a positive working environment for our staff, freelancers and the companies we work with. For more information see our website bristoluniversitypress.co.uk/author-hub/why-publish-with-us/sustainability

The global COVID-19 pandemic has highlighted the vital importance of developing new ways of working that are socially and environmentally responsible and you can find out more about our approach to sustainability and diversity on our website <https://bristoluniversitypress.co.uk/author-hub/why-publish-with-us/diversity-and-inclusion>

Open Access

At Bristol University Press and Policy Press we work hard to make as much content open as possible, while ensuring that we can cover the necessary costs involved in a high-quality publishing operation and provide the all-important marketing, promotion and discoverability activities needed to ensure Open Access (OA) content can be found.

Our commitment to sustainable OA is crucial to our 'publishing for a purpose' mission because it makes research more widely and easily visible to researchers, practitioners and policy makers; it fosters greater dialogue across disciplinary and geographical boundaries; and reduces inequalities in access to knowledge due to lack of institutional funding.

We offer both Green and Gold options for all our journal and book content and we are flexible to allow for funder compliance. We are also exploring other potential OA models for the future.

For journals, our OA content is available to access on our IngentaConnect platform and it is clearly signposted on our website. For books, we make our OA content available via OAPEN and JSTOR and we are delighted to be a part of the Knowledge Unlatched collections which are funded by libraries.

We offer waivers and discounts on our standard APCs to researchers in developing countries and to those in institutions who subscribe to our journal collections as well as read access to our journals and books via Research 4 Life.

Overturning the Toxic Poverty Narrative

Mary O'Hara, Guardian journalist

Foreword by Danny Dorling, University of Oxford

"O'Hara has woven a rich tapestry of joy and terror and talent and lost opportunities and the picture she draws is the most comprehensive description of poverty I've seen yet."

LINDA TIRADO, JOURNALIST AND AUTHOR OF *HAND TO MOUTH

"O'Hara dips into her own life to explore poverty and how it's portrayed in the United States and Britain."

WASHINGTON POST

"[This] is the book we need right now. Real stories, by people who have lived that story, smashing apart the divisive narratives around poverty that are so damaging to all of us."

KERRY HUDSON, AUTHOR OF *LOWBORN

What does it mean to be poor in Britain and America? For decades the primary narrative in both countries has been that poverty is caused by personal flaws or 'bad life decisions' rather than by policy choices or economic inequality. This misleading account has become deeply embedded in the public consciousness with serious ramifications for how financially vulnerable people are seen, spoken about and treated.

Drawing on a two-year multiplatform initiative, this book by award-winning journalist and author Mary O'Hara asks how we can overturn this fundamentally pernicious portrayal once and for all. Crucially, to try to find answers, she turns to the real experts on poverty – the people who live it.

Superdiversity, Policy and Governance in Europe

Multi-scalar Perspectives

Edited by Jenny Phillimore and Nando Sigona, University of Birmingham and Katherine Tonkiss, Aston University

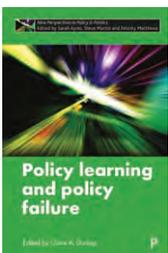

Superdiversity is the future, or in many cases the current reality, of our neighbourhoods, cities, countries and regions. However, its implications for governance and policy have, until now, received very little attention.

First published as a special issue of Policy & Politics, this insightful volume brings together contributions from experts across Europe to explore the ways in which superdiversity has shaped the development of policy and to consider challenges for the future.

The Research Journal

A Reflective Tool for Your First Independent Research Project

Barbara Bassot, Canterbury Christ Church University

"This lively and interactive book is filled with useful tasks and suggestions, providing new and returning researchers with a terrific framework to help them think through their project."

JON DEAN, SHEFFIELD HALLAM UNIVERSITY

"A useful introductory and interactive journal for undergraduates beginning their first independent research project. A valuable tool to use throughout the research process that will aid students' reflective thinking."

EMMA CRADDOCK, UNIVERSITY OF WARWICK

"A refreshingly pragmatic book packed with ideas and directions that students embarking on their first research project will find incredibly valuable."

RACHEL VIPOND, UNIVERSITY OF YORK

Are your students worried about how to get their research project started and how to keep it on track? Do they struggle to gather their thoughts and develop their ideas through deeper reflection and understanding?

This brilliant book is a great guide for students undertaking their first piece of independent research. Regular critical reflection is an invaluable tool for helping them gain new insights, deal with practical issues as they arise and develop their understanding. This book gets them started in the habit of using a research journal.

Offering a systematic but flexible framework, the book enables them to:

- reflect at a deeper level about all aspects of their research;
- develop their arguments and ideas;
- process each part of their research project or dissertation;
- consider and confront the challenges they may face in their project.

Including key definitions, top tips and helpful exercises, the book will be invaluable to any student undertaking independent research across the social sciences.

Creative Research Methods

A Practical Guide

Helen Kara, We Research It Ltd

Now in its second edition, this book is the first to identify and examine the five areas of creative research methods:

- arts-based research
- embodied research
- research using technology
- multimodal research
- transformative research frameworks

Written in an accessible and practical style, the book informs and inspires researchers by showing readers why, when and how to use creative methods in their research.

Challenge-Led Research Practices

Research practices are fast evolving. The rise of interdisciplinarity, the popularity of co-produced and indigenous research, the ever-increasing importance of impact and the decolonial turn present challenges to traditional approaches to research and provide cutting-edge new methods and theories with which to address the challenges of the 21st century.

We have long championed innovative approaches to knowledge production and we aim to become a home for work that explores these new research practices.

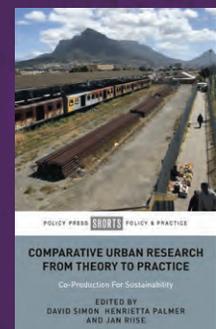

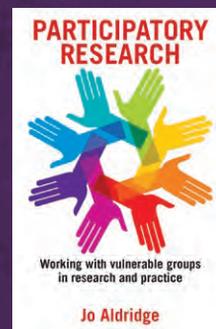

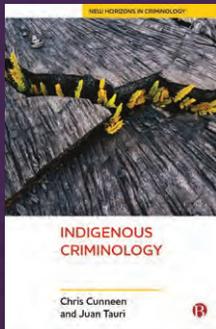

If you have a proposal that explores any of these issues or ideas you wish to discuss, please get in touch with Philippa.

Critical Questions for Ageing Societies

Gemma Carney, Queen's University Belfast and Paul Nash, University of Southern California

This myth-busting and question-focused textbook tackles the important social and policy issues posed by ageing.

A unique pedagogical approach recognises the gap between the lives of students and older people, and equips students with the conceptual, analytic and critical tools to understand what it means to grow old and live in an ageing society. Features include:

- myth-busting boxes unpacking common ageing stereotypes;
- lively examples and vignettes bringing debates to life;
- group and self-study activities.

"An excellent introduction to crucial issues facing ageing societies. It succeeds in challenging its readers to question their assumptions about ageing and later life."

Social Divisions and Later Life

Difference, Diversity and Inequality

Chris Gilleard, University of Bath and University College London and Paul Higgs, University College London

Two internationally renowned experts in ageing look beyond longstanding factors like class, gender and ethnicity to explore new social divisions, including contrasting states of physical fitness and mental health.

They show how differences in health and frailty are creating fresh inequalities in later life, with significant implications for the future of our ageing societies.

"Higgs and Gilleard's unique perspective and intellectual rigour challenge preconceptions of how the social location of later life is constituted."

Health and Social Care

As the NHS and other health systems around the world respond to a global pandemic, it is more important than ever that our growing list of public health and social care titles inform policy and practice based on academically robust evidence.

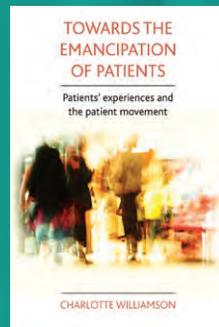

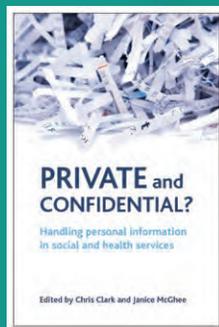

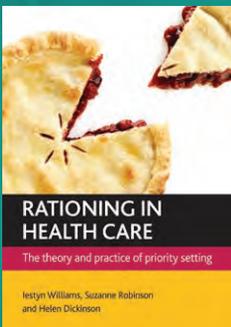

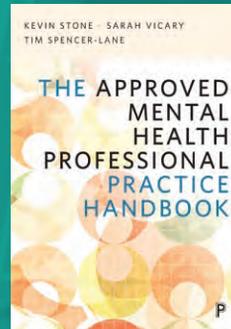

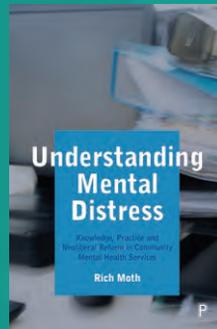

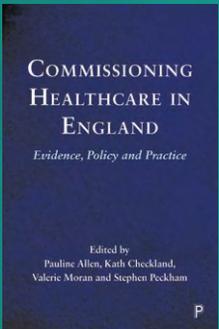

This season we have new titles that look at health support workers and intellectual disability at an international level as well as social determinants of health at the local level (page 56).

Support Workers and the Health Professions in International Perspective

The Invisible Providers of Health Care

Edited by Mike Saks, University of Suffolk

“The COVID-19 crisis has highlighted the contribution of support workers. Saks and colleagues provide a discussion that has the potential to inform current and future workforce planning.”

IAN PEATE, GIBRALTAR HEALTH AUTHORITY

This original collection analyses the global experience of health care support workers (HSWs).

Leading academics examine issues including the interface of HSWs with the health professions, regulatory practice risks, employment challenges and the dilemmas of an ageing population. Crucial future policy recommendations are made for a world becoming increasingly dependent on HSWs.

Local Authorities and the Social Determinants of Health

Edited by Adrian Bonner, University of Stirling

Following on from Social Determinants of Health (Bonner 2017), this new and crucial contemporary study reviews the evolving role of local authorities in health, social care and wellbeing.

Reviewing regional disparities and case studies of strategies and interventions from local authorities, this collaborative study addresses complex issues, considers where responsibility for wellbeing lies and points the way to future policy making.

The Centre for Partnering (CfP) is a key outcome of Bonner's two innovative reviews of the social determinants of health.

Children, Young People and Families

The current social and political climate is placing unprecedented strain on families. In these precarious times, children and young people are in a particularly vulnerable position and increasingly at risk of being marginalised from society. Alongside established childhood and youth studies textbooks, we publish a range of books looking at child welfare issues.

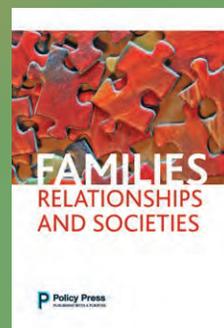

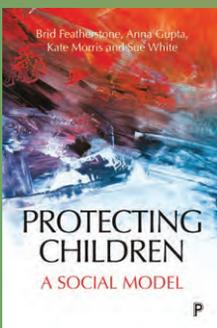

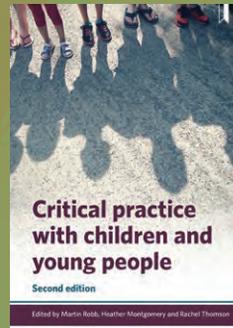

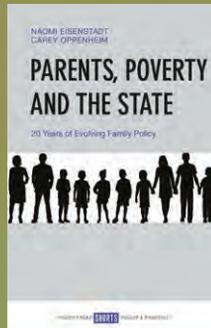

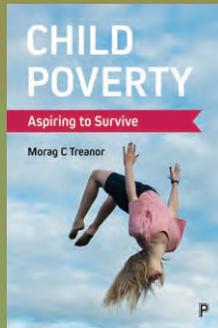

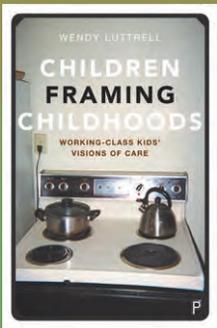

We are passionate about the rights and agency of children and young people and seek to promote child and youth-centred practice through our publishing. This is reflected in this season's new titles, which foreground the experiences of children and young people and provide models for enabling young peoples' participation in a variety of settings throughout the Global North and Global South.

Embedding Young People's Participation in Health Services New Approaches

Edited by Louca-Mai Brady, Kingston University London and freelance research consultant

"Provides important practice insights on how practice with young people can be improved and ways they can be given a more meaningful voice in decision making."

CLIVE DIAZ, CARDIFF UNIVERSITY

Young people often occupy a marginalised position in healthcare encounters. In addition, participation in health tends to be driven by a public engagement agenda, rather than more radical models of participatory practice.

Brady provides an alternative praxis of participation which draws on theories of participatory practice and children's rights. Using a wide range of practice examples, she gives evidence-based guidance to show how young people's participation in decision making can be embedded more effectively into health services.

Law

This year many of us will have become more aware of the ways in which the law can impact our lives. It is more important than ever that we understand how the law works, how justice can be achieved and how the law might need to develop to respond to huge changes taking place within our global society.

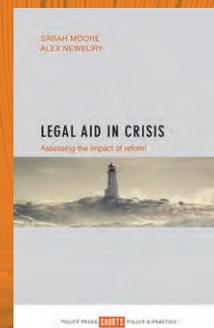

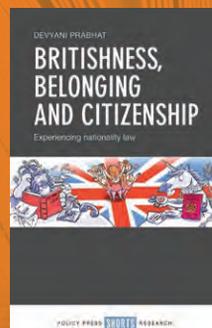

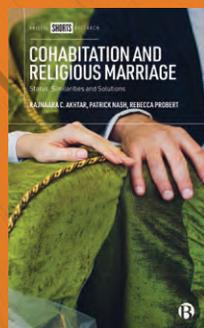

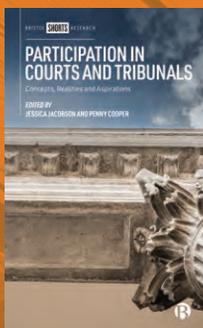

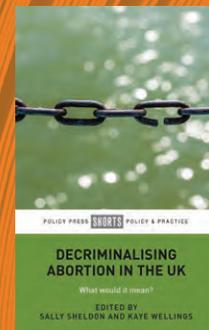

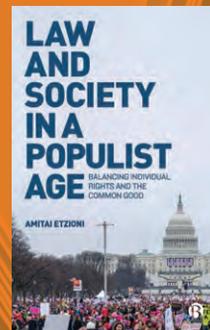

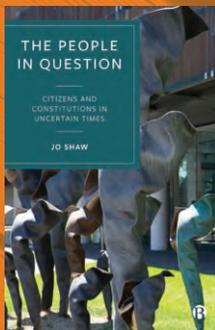

We have a great range of law books to help with this, from engaging works which will speak to general readers, interdisciplinary monographs and international edited collections based on the latest research, as well as shorter books which will help readers engage quickly with critical legal issues.

Enemies of the People?

How Judges Shape Society

Joshua Rozenberg, Journalist and broadcaster

"A very readable and engaging book which I'd certainly recommend to students as part of their introduction to common law. It uses high-profile cases to demonstrate how cautiously the judges proceed."

PROFESSOR DAME HAZEL GENN DBE QC (HON), UNIVERSITY COLLEGE LONDON

"A highly readable, hard-hitting and perceptive defence of our judges against the accusation that they are too activist. It should be read by anyone interested in this important constitutional question."

RT HON LORD DYSON, FORMER JUDGE

"Joshua Rozenberg's views are clear throughout this engaging study of the role of the judiciary in contemporary Britain. At times he seems positively prescient. We need this sort of contribution to our current and frenzied debates."

SARA NATHAN OBE, FORMER JUDICIAL APPOINTMENTS COMMISSIONER

Do judges use the power of the state for the good of the nation? Or do they create new laws in line with their personal views? When newspapers reported a court ruling on Brexit, senior judges were shocked to see themselves condemned as enemies of the people. But that did not stop them ruling that an order made by the Queen on the advice of her prime minister was just a 'blank piece of paper'.

Joshua Rozenberg, Britain's best-known commentator on the law, asks how judges can maintain public confidence while balancing conflicting interests.

Property, Power and Politics

Why We Need to Rethink the World Power System

Jean-Philippe Robé, Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher LLP

"A real tour de force by one of the most original, deep thinkers, today."

RONEN PALAN, CITY UNIVERSITY LONDON

This revolutionary work rethinks globalization as a power system feeding from, and in competition with, the state system. Robé illustrates how the concentration of property rights within corporations led to the rejection of democracy as an ineffective system of government and to the rise in inequality and offers a clear pathway to a fairer and more sustainable power system.

Sex Work and the New Zealand Model Decriminalisation and Social Change

Edited by Lynzi Armstrong, Victoria University of Wellington and Gillian Abel, University of Otago

Using evidence from New Zealand, this unique collection examines how decriminalisation is experienced by different groups of sex workers and reveals the enduring challenges for sex workers. This is an invaluable contribution to the urgent debates regarding sex work laws and the global struggle to realise sex workers' rights.

Good Policing

Trust, Legitimacy and Authority

Mike Hough, Birkbeck, University of London

“Good combination of academic theory, empirical evidence, and policy recommendations written for a large audience, many of whom will go onto work in policing and associated areas”

BEN BRADFORD, UNIVERSITY COLLEGE LONDON

Written by one of the UK’s top criminologists, this book challenges the current political discourse on crime to offer insights about what ‘good policing’ is. The author lays out an emerging body of research about policing styles, establishing that trust in the police is key to its legitimacy with the wider public.

Human Geography

Human geography is a wide-ranging discipline that has huge relevance for understanding what is going on in the world, such as how human societies develop and how increased globalisation and climate change affect how we lead our lives and, more recently, impact our health.

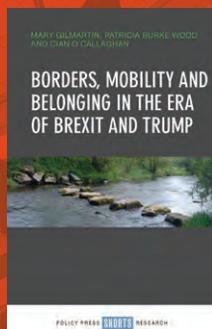

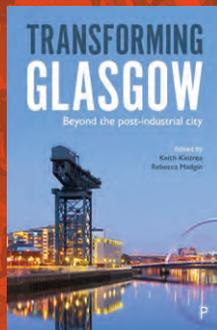

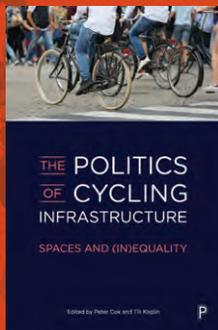

We aim to produce high-quality, scholarly, research-based textbooks, monographs and topical books for a wide audience and strive to be one of the publishers of choice for books in the field. Highlights for this season include Jacob C. Miller's Spectacle and Trumpism (page 74) and Garth Myers's Rethinking Urbanism (page 75).

An Embodied Assemblage Approach

Jacob C. Miller, Northumbria
University

BRISTOL SHORTS RESEARCH

This radical and experimental book advances a new approach to understanding spectacle, one that helps us better understand how consumer culture paved the way for the post-truth politics of Donald Trump.

Miller innovatively blends social and political theory, newspaper articles and contemporary commentary on Trump and Trumpism to provide a unique perspective on how capitalism intersects with and enables fascistic forms of power.

"Thirty years ago, Félix Guattari likened Trump to an algal bloom, crowding out other lifeforms across entire city districts. Miller examines our predicament as this process assumes global proportions ..."

The City in China

New Perspectives on Contemporary Urbanism

Edited by Ray Forrest (1951–2020),
Julie Ren, Humboldt-Universität
zu Berlin and Bart Wissink, City
University of Hong Kong

This timely study gathers reflections from a broad range of China specialists to engage with the challenges of conceptualising urban China and ask important questions about the development of contemporary global cities.

Essential for urban studies scholars, this book is an invaluable teaching resource and a useful tool for policy-makers and urban planners.

"Reflects upon the amazing urbanization processes experienced in the 'new' new world of China and the limits of applying Western theory to Chinese experiences."

Rethinking Urbanism

Lessons from Postcolonialism and the Global South

Garth Myers, Trinity College, Connecticut

Using research from a broad range of case studies from lesser-studied cities across the Global South and Global North, Myers provides new insights into popular understandings of urbanism.

Drawing on postcolonial studies to decentre Western-centric perspectives, he presents new and compelling evidence for the need to reconstruct our understanding of 'good' urban environments.

"Not content to follow the usual tropes of urban studies, Myers challenges mainstream urban theory at a time of great uncertainty about urbanism on a world scale."

Comparative Urbanism in Practice

Art Spaces in Beijing and Berlin

Julie Ren, Humboldt-Universität zu Berlin

Julie Ren investigates the motivations and practices of making art spaces in Beijing and Berlin to engage with comparative urbanism as a framework for doing research, beyond its significance as a critical intervention.

Across vastly different contexts, where universal theories of modernity or development have become an anachronism, she innovatively explores the ways that art spaces employ creative capital to sustain themselves in a competitive urban landscape.

"This rich theoretical, methodological and empirical journey between Beijing and Berlin brings comparative urbanism into tangible applicability for urban researchers."

Sustainable Human Development across the Life Course

Evidence from Longitudinal Research

Edited by Prerna Banati, UNICEF

It is critical that the wellbeing of society is systematically tracked by indicators that not only give an accurate picture of human life today, but also provide a window into the future for all of us.

This important book presents impactful findings from 12 international longitudinal studies that respond to the UN Agenda 2030 commitment to 'leave no one behind'. Exploring a wide range and complexity of global issues, it provides actionable strategies for policy makers and practitioners to strengthen the UN Sustainable Development Goals and accelerate their implementation.

Religion and Health Care in East Africa

Lessons from Uganda, Mozambique and Ethiopia

Robert B. Lloyd, Palm Beach Atlantic University, Melissa Hausman, Carleton University and Patrick James, University of Southern California

Focusing on East African societies, this book is the first to investigate what role religion plays in health care in African cultures.

Taking into account the geopolitical and economic environments of the region, the authors examine the roles played by individual and group beliefs, government policies, and pressure from the Millennium Development Goals in affecting health outcomes.

Environment and Sustainability

Building a significant Environment and Sustainability list is of high priority for us as a Press. As climate change remains one of the biggest social challenges our future generations will face, urgent action is needed to influence the political agenda, contribute to the debate and incite real change.

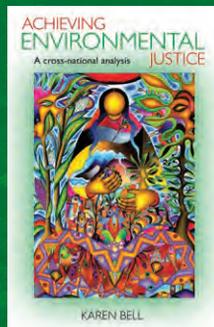

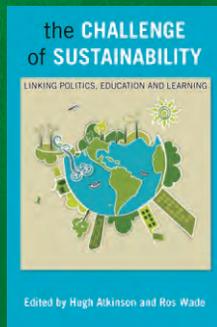

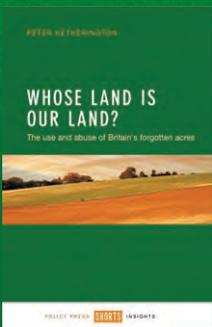

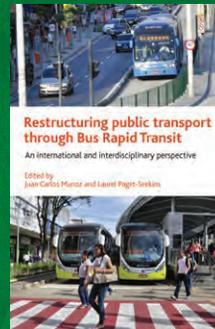

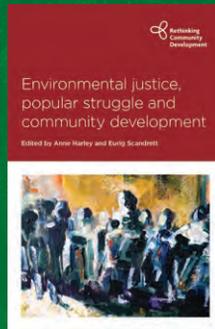

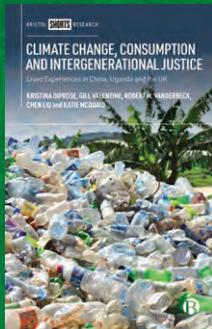

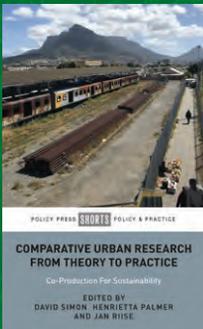

Of central importance is to publish works which offer a solid foundation for international and domestic policies around global warming and support building impactful democratic solutions. These include Rebecca Willis' Too Hot to Handle? and Peter J. Taylor et al.'s Cities Demanding the Earth (page 79).

Too Hot to Handle? The Democratic Challenge of Climate Change

Rebecca Willis, Lancaster University

BRISTOL SHORTS RESEARCH

Scientists are clear that urgent action is needed on climate change, and world leaders agree. Yet climate issues barely trouble domestic politics.

Based on interviews with leading politicians and activists and the author's 20 years on the front line of climate politics, this book explores why climate is such a challenge for political systems, even when policy solutions exist. It argues that more democracy, not less, is needed to tackle the climate crisis, and suggests practical ways forward.

Cities Demanding the Earth A New Understanding of the Climate Emergency

Peter J. Taylor, Loughborough
University and Northumbria University,
Geoff O'Brien and Phil O'Keefe,
Northumbria University

The demands that we are making on nature by living in cities has reached a crisis point and unless we make significant changes to address it, the prognosis is terminal consumption.

Providing a radical new argument and using global understandings of making nature and making cities, this book shows that we must move beyond current policies and reinvent our cities as spaces for environmental activism.

Planning and Housing

Our Planning and Housing list aims to tackle key questions such as how to create better homes and neighbourhoods, how to make zero-carbon standard homes, how to plan equitable public spaces and how to provide affordable housing amidst an ongoing housing crisis and government cuts.

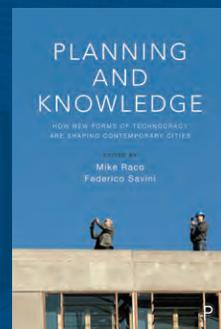

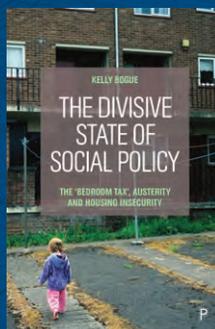

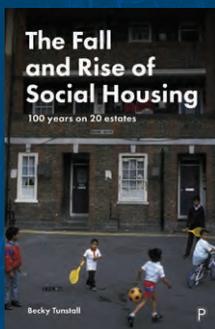

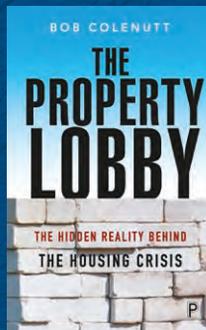

Our established list offers research and evidence to respond to these issues and inform the creation of better homes and built environments for individuals and communities in the UK and on a global level. Recent additions include Rory Hearne's Housing Shock (page 85) and Tim Marshall's The Politics and Ideology of Planning (page 84).

The Politics and Ideology of Planning

Tim Marshall, Oxford Brookes
University

Planning is a battleground of ideas and interests, perhaps more visibly and continuously than ever before in the UK. Marshall goes to the root of current planning models and exposes who is acting for what purposes in these battlegrounds.

He examines the ideological structuring of planning, the interplay of various political interests and contemporary attempts at planning reform by recent governments. Importantly, this book shows how we can generate more effective political engagements for common gain.

Housing Shock

The Irish Housing Crisis and How to Solve it

Rory Hearne, Maynooth University

The unprecedented housing and homelessness crisis in Ireland is having profound impacts on Generation Rent: affecting the wellbeing of children, worsening inequality and threatening the economy.

Hearne contextualises the Irish housing crisis within the broader global housing situation and examines the origins of the crisis in terms of austerity, marketisation and the new era of financialisation. He brings to the fore the perspectives of those most affected and provides innovative solutions for affordable, sustainable homes for all.

Journals

Our journals programme continues to go from strength to strength, with the list doubling over the past three years. We now publish 14 titles across the social sciences, many of them interdisciplinary in focus. We are delighted that the Journal of Poverty and Social Justice is now indexed in the Social Sciences Citation Index, The European Journal of Politics and Gender has just been accepted into Scopus and that the Journal of Gender-Based Violence and International Journal of Care and Caring are now included in the Emerging Sources Citation Index.

We have plans to grow yet further and are very excited to announce that Work in the Global Economy published in association with the International Labour Process Conference will launch in 2021. Other titles are in development and we are planning a number of Open Access initiatives and Special Issues in response to COVID-19.
